· Only two courses used in fulfilling the requirements for a second major in a contributing discipline can be used in the Global Studies major.

- At least 3 courses must come from Political Science.
- At least 3 courses must be at the 200-level and up.
- Fifteen hours of the courses in the major, including POL 496, must be completed in residence at Randolph College.

¹Students, in close consultation with their advisor, identify a focus area that covers a global issue of interest. Possible focus areas include but are not limited to human rights, environmental sustainability, gender, conflict/war and its resolution, security, and diplomacy. Students should do a close reading of course descriptions and complete the Request for Course Credit in the Global Studies Focus Area (posted next to the Declaration of Major Form). Courses taken abroad and on other campuses within the U.S. are eligible for inclusion; topics courses offered on a one-time-only basis may also be eligible.

²Language competency is a clear advantage in today's world, and the global studies student is encouraged to go as far as possible in language studies. The student majoring in global studies should understand that job opportunities and career options are enhanced by intentional effort to gain proficiency in languages that tie to the major focus. With this in mind, the major requires, at a minimum, intermediate-level proficiency in a modern language other than English. The student can demonstrate this proficiency either by earning a placement score beyond the intermediate level or by completing a fourth-semester, intermediate-level language course. The student who has completed secondary education at a school whose language of instruction is other than English can seek an exception to this language requirement.

*Specify the courses you are using to fulfill the requirement, transfer courses or another course you are being allowed to substitute. Note: The Request for Substitution of Major/Minor Requirement Form must be completed for substituted courses.

I understand that I am responsible for successfully completing all courses listed by the end of my final year with a minimum GPA of 2.0 (rounded), for determining that scheduling will allow me to fulfill requirements, and for obtaining approval for any courses taken at another institution to count toward the major.
